

AUTISM SPECTRUM DISORDER IN SCHOOLS: EVIDENCE-BASED ASSESSMENT AND INTERVENTION

Presenter: Lee A. Wilkinson, Ph.D., NCSP

Friday, May 11, 2018 ♦ 9:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m.
Fort Lauderdale, Florida

Autism is the fastest growing developmental disorder in the United States and continues to be an important health concern. School and mental health professionals must be prepared to recognize the presence of risk factors and/or early warning signs of autism spectrum disorder (ASD), engage in case finding, and be familiar with screening and assessment tools and intervention strategies to ensure that students are being identified and provided with the appropriate programs and services. Moreover, the call for greater use of evidence-based practice has increased demands that professionals stay current with the latest methods of evaluation and intervention, and become skilled with the most up-to-date screening and assessment tools. The objective of this presentation is to provide participants with guidance in the selection and use of evidence-based assessment measures and intervention strategies for school-age children and adolescents with ASD.
