

Clinical Psychology Faculty

The College of Psychology at Nova Southeastern University invites qualified applications for an open rank faculty position in clinical psychology. The area of clinical/scholarly expertise is open. A candidate with a strong background in statistics, who can provide statistical consultation to doctoral students, is desirable.

The successful candidates are expected to have demonstrated excellence in teaching and mentoring of students. Additionally, they must be actively involved in research and scholarship, with expectations to maintain an ongoing program of research, publish, and supervise student research. A track record of, or potential to secure external funding to support research is desirable. Individuals with demonstrated commitment to diversity through their teaching, scholarship, and/or service are encouraged to apply.

The teaching expectation for the position includes core clinical psychology courses, as well as electives in her/his own specialty areas. The faculty member will supervise doctoral psychology trainees in their clinical work. The faculty member is also expected to fulfill service responsibilities to the department, college, and university.

Required Qualifications

- Doctorate degree in psychology
- Licensed or license-eligible as a psychologist in the state of Florida
- College and/or University level teaching experience
- A record of scholarly publications

Desired Qualifications

- Experience in teaching graduate level courses
- Clinical supervision experience
- Expertise in statistics
- Potential to secure external funding to support a research program

Nova Southeastern University is a not-for-profit university located in Fort Lauderdale, Florida, approximately 25 miles north of Miami. NSU is proud of its U.S. Department of Education designation as a Hispanic-serving institution, and awards more doctoral and professional degrees to Hispanics and other minorities than any other university in the United States. NSU is also second in the U.S. for professional degrees awarded to African Americans. The College of Psychology places a high priority on the creation of an environment supportive of diversity in faculty and students, a core value of the university.

Review of applications will begin immediately, and continue until the position is filled. To apply, visit www.nsujobs.com and refer to search position number 997273. Inquiries about the position may be directed to Marie Stokes (mdstokes@nova.edu).