

THE PRACTICE OF TELE-MENTAL HEALTH AND USE OF SOCIAL MEDIA: ETHICAL, LEGAL, AND CLINICAL ISSUES FOR PRACTITIONERS

Presenter: Jeffrey E. Barnett, Psy.D., ABPP

Friday, January 27, 2017 ♦ 1:30 p.m. – 4:30 p.m.
Fort Lauderdale, Florida

A wide range of technologies to include the Internet, e-mail, text messaging, social media, Apps, and the like have greatly impacted the lives of most individuals in our society today. They have altered how most individuals communicate with each other, stay connected, and form and maintain relationships. The practice of psychology is no exception. This workshop will provide information about the ethical, legal, and clinical issues relevant to integrating various technologies into our practices. Information will be provided about each of these technologies and their applications, to include how to effectively integrate them into ongoing psychotherapy in ways that are beneficial to our clients. Additionally, common pitfalls and areas where the use of various technologies, to include social media, is contraindicated will be discussed. Research on how various technologies may be effectively integrated into clinical practice to treat a wide range of presenting problems and disorders is reviewed and their implications for our practices is discussed. Tips for ethically and legally integrating various technologies into our clinical practices in a manner that supports client needs and adds to the effectiveness of treatment are provided. Guidance on decision-making for when and how to do this is provided as well to include the provision of clinical services across distances and the use of various technologies to enhance or augment in-person services. Clinical examples are provided to illustrate some of the benefits and challenges of utilizing these technological innovations in clinical practice are provided. Ample time will be provided for discussion.
